Our Members’ Only Preview hours will continue to be extended due to the ever-growing attendance and interest in this popular event. We encourage you to bring your own wagon, but we will have plenty on hand if you don’t have one.

Those planning to attend should enter from Northern Avenue on the east side of the Park.

Evolvulus arizonicus, Arizona Blue-eyes is a pretty and dainty morning glory—soft, pliable leaves and vibrant, delicate flowers—that is also a native of the high deserts of Cochise County, Arizona. Although supplemental water is normally not required for its survival, giving your Arizona Blue-eyes a deep soaking once a month will ensure that it’s happy in its role as a ground cover, well suited to filling in gaps between shrubs or cacti in your landscape while also providing seasonal (April – October) color with its azure blue blossoms. Piece by Piece – An Exhibition of Mosaics
Continuing through October 20 | Exhibit House Entry Gallery

For centuries, mosaic art has been an important element of nearly every culture on the planet and can be found within a wide range of diverse communities. While mosaic is a highly venerated and established form of art, there is a current movement to elevate it into the contemporary art world through innovative design and non-traditional materials. This exhibition highlights how artists from the greater Tucson region are balancing tradition and innovation by employing a variety of techniques and media—glass, photographs, and ceramics—ensuring that this time-honored art form continues to flourish. Free Reception with Día de los Muertos: Friday | September 13 | 5:30 – 7:30 p.m.

Día de los Muertos
September 13 – November 10 | Exhibit House Main Gallery
Free Reception: Friday | September 13 | 5:30 – 7:30 p.m.

Tohono Chul’s much anticipated Día de los Muertos exhibition showcases a wide array of artworks created by regional artists who are paying homage to this very special observance, blending tradition with their own personal interpretations. Through vibrant paintings, sculptures, photographs, prints, and other media, these works link us as human beings and invite us to understand death as an integral part of living. Once again, our ever-popular Community Altar (Ofrenda) is central to the exhibition, allowing visitors to participate by leaving a token memento in tribute to loved ones. Curator’s Talks: Tuesday, September 17 & Thursday, September 19 | 10 a.m.

Featured Artist – Barbara Brandel
September 13 – November 10 | Exhibit House Welcome Gallery

Barbara Brandel is an award-winning local textile artist who most recently has been working in a range of media, including painting, collage and sculpture. As this quarter’s Featured Artist, we are focusing on her multi-layered and colorful work in the realm of mixed media collage. Employing vintage postage stamps and maps, her works depict expressive figures, costumes, hands and objects. Through Barbara’s deliberate selection of collage materials, each of these works contain within them visual stories and layers of meaning that invite close investigation and personal interpretation.
Collection Spotlight
Miniature Horsehair Basket
September 13 – February 16 | Exhibit House Welcome Gallery

Tohono Chul’s Permanent Collection is filled with treasures large and small, each of which is infused with personal meaning and cultural significance; they link us with our past and inform our future. This masterfully crafted miniature Tohono O’odham basket holds within its fibers a celebrated history as the first logo of Tohono Chul and is symbolic of an important shift in Native American arts and crafts during the mid-twentieth century. This quarter, we celebrate this important piece of Tohono Chul’s story while paying tribute to former Volunteer, Ione Smith, whose memorial fund has made this Collection Spotlight possible.

Small Works Exhibition
October 25 – December 15 | Exhibit House Entry Gallery

For 20 years, Tohono Chul’s annual Holiday For the Park ornament exhibit has been a cherished opportunity to enjoy seasonally inspired works by local artists. This year, we are shaking things up with a new invitational exhibition which spans a wider range of themes, styles and media. Featuring modestly priced small artworks by over 130 artists, this is a perfect opportunity for emerging and seasoned collectors to find one of a kind pieces by our celebrated regional artists. The display is changing regularly, making each visit to this show a unique experience. This exhibition will be open during our Holiday Nights Celebrations, so be sure to stop in and see something new!

Nature Illustrated
November 15 – February 16 | Exhibit House Main Gallery
Free Reception: Friday | November 15 | 5:30 – 7:30 p.m.

When art and science intersect, amazing things happen; worlds are revealed wherein facts and concentrated study sit comfortably alongside artistic curiosity and wonder. This exhibition takes a close look at artworks that harness this combination while focusing on the flora and fauna of the Sonoran Desert and the greater Southwest. Paintings, drawings and digitally generated illustrations are on display by regional artists whose work is fueled by detailed observation paired with a passion for color, composition, and visual beauty.
Curator’s Talks: Tuesday, November 19 & Thursday, November 21 | 10 a.m.

Park After Dark
Celebrating Día de los Muertos
Friday | November 1 | 5 – 8 p.m.
$5 members | $10 general public
children under 13 free

Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) is celebrated on All Saints’ Day (November 1st) and All Souls’ Day (November 2nd). With roots blending customs from pre-Hispanic and European influences, Día de los Muertos is a family observance which joyfully honors and remembers loved ones who have passed on. It is a poignant time, both solemn and celebratory, with colorful traditions, pageantry, and whimsy. Families clean, paint and decorate graves of relatives and participate in graveside vigils with candles, flowers and music.

Park After Dark returns this year with a special evening focused on this rich and eclectic borderlands celebration. The Día de los Muertos exhibition in the Main Gallery will be open with our ever popular community altar (Ofrenda) where visitors can leave a memento or message for a loved one. We’ve also invited local artists to create individual altars on the grounds to demonstrate their personal vision of this unique holiday. Come and dance to the jazzy salsa sounds of Rafael Moreno and Descarga, get your face painted “calavera” style (skull mask) and shop for Day of the Dead collectibles for your own ofrenda in the La Galeria museum shop. The Garden Bistro will be selling Mexican street food along with beer. You can also enjoy complimentary popcorn as you and your family stroll the grounds this extraordinary evening in celebration of Day of the Dead.

Guatemalan Crafts Sale
Friday | November 22 | 10 a.m. – 4 p.m. | Children’s Ramada

Join us for one of Tohono Chul’s most popular trunk shows to do some early Holiday shopping for affordable and unique items—you’ll find some great stocking stuffers at the very least! Mayan women of Guatemala live in the mountain villages of their ancestors, weaving colorful textiles using traditional back-strap looms. The intricate patterns of their weaving are both ancient and modern, reflecting symbols of the pre-Columbian past and the spiritualism of the weaver, through patterns revealed in dreams. Offered for sale at this special trunk show will be an array of clothing from flowered huipiles (square-cut blouses) to colorful rebozos (shawls), as well as fabric on the bolt, contemporary purses, vests, table runners and colorful beaded jewelry. Free admission during the sale.
The Desert Palm Oasis Exhibit is Coming!
Opening mid-October 2013

Our newest garden, the Desert Palm Oasis brings to light the desert’s tropical connections in a unique biome interpretation not found anywhere else. Several species of native palms (brahea, sabal and Washingtonia) usually found in isolated oases in narrow canyons along the coast of the Sea of Cortez near Guaymas, Mexico, are being placed in an accessible “walking garden” that incorporates other native plants of the canyons such as rock fig and Nacapule jasmine, along with a “spring fed” stream that will support a population of endangered native fish.

“We wanted to offer visitors the opportunity to discover the beauty and rich biodiversity of this rare Sonoran Desert habitat and learn to how to incorporate some of the plants into their own gardens” says Christine Conte, Executive Director of Tohono Chul. "With foliage-shaded paths and a water feature, it offers a glimpse of these remote habitats and complements the streamside riparian exhibit near the Education Center. "..."Because they are so rare and so remote, most people will never experience these native palm oases in the wild. “By introducing this new exhibit,” noted Conte, “we hope they will appreciate the incredible diversity of our Sonoran Desert and help preserve it for generations to come.”

The new exhibit is included in the cost of admission and will be open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., daily, beginning in mid-October.

Out the Garden Gates
Tohono Chul and the Iskashitaa Refugee Network Help Local Horses

Eileen Majeski was torn when she noticed the over 100 mesquite trees on the property where she boards her horses starting to bloom. Eileen was thankful for the shade the trees provide, but worried about the beans they would be dropping. Arizona horse owners know that horses love the sweetness of mesquite beans. Unfortunately, horses that eat large quantities of the beans may develop colic. The mesquite beans cause an impaction of the stomach or intestine. Sometimes expensive surgery is needed to remove the impacted mass of pods and beans.

Considering this problem, Eileen remembered an article she had read in the Spring Desert Corner Journal about the Iskashitaa Refugee Network, whose members harvest mesquite beans and other edible foods from private yards and Tohono Chul. The group turns its bounty into tantalizing treats to be sold at farmer’s markets and Tohono Chul’s La Fuente shop. Eileen went to her saved emails and looked them up (yes, Eileen saves all of our communications).

She soon had her ranch cleared of mesquite beans. Iskashitta had an easy harvest and La Fuente will soon have mesquite flours and syrups for your enjoyment. It’s a win-win for everyone. It’s also one of the many ways Tohono Chul’s mission helps the Tucson community outside of its garden gates.

To find out more about Iskashitaa please go www.iskashitaa.org

Living with the Desert
Thu. | Sep. 19 – Oct. 24 | 9 a.m. – 11 a.m. | U of A Outreach College
Each of us has come to live in the Sonoran Desert for different reasons, some of us arriving years ago and others, just yesterday. The desert’s plants appear unique, even odd; its creatures seem strange and often threatening. Yet nearly every one of us senses a magical quality to the land and it inhabitants, both past and present. Just what is it about the desert that so intrigues us? And what can we learn from and about the land that will enhance our time spent here and let us live gently in this fragile environment? Taught by Jo Falls, Director of Education, this six week course explores these questions and furthers our understanding of the relationships that shape the land.

Bead Trimmed Gourds: Creating Negative Space
Saturday | October 19 | 9 a.m. – 4 p.m. | Education Center Classroom #2

Always popular gourd artist Sue Brogdon has a different way to use pine needles in a rim treatment for your next gourd project! The combination of pine needles and beads make a spectacular statement on an asymmetrical round gourd and Brogdon shares tips for making the rim treatment structurally sound, discusses appropriate beads and complementary lashing materials. Using water-based inks in combination with oil stiks and metallic wax, participants will be able to create subtle yet sophisticated finishes and complete the project with a lining of handmade paper. Materials provided; but please bring a heat tool (if you have one), plastic or latex gloves, a bucket, old towel and scissors. $85 members | $100 general public

Día de los Muertos: A Celebration of Life & Death
Saturday | October 26 | 10 a.m. | Education Center Classroom #1

Author Elena Diaz Bjorkquist, research affiliate with the Southwest Institute for Research on Women at the University of Arizona traces the origins of this festival. Día los Muertos, or Day of the Dead, is a significant and widely celebrated holiday in Mexico, Latin America and the southwestern part of the U.S. To many Mexicans, death is not a subject to be feared or ignored, but rather respectfully celebrated. Bjorkquist also describes the traditional elements associated with the holiday including foods, folk crafts and altars and introduces the artist, Jose Guadalupe Posada and his still popular etchings, lithographs and “calaveras,”—scathing satirical poems in which he depicted social and political personalities as skeletons. $6 members | $10 general public

Breakfast with the Birds
Tue. | Oct. 29 OR Thu. | Nov. 14 | 8 a.m. – 12 p.m. | Ed Center Room #1

We are fortunate to be living in one of the world’s premier birding areas. This half-day program, designed for the novice birder or birder-wannabe, provides an overview of the variety of birds found in Southeastern Arizona. We begin with a buffet continental breakfast and an illustrated lecture, focusing on physiology, habits and habitat. From bird identification we move on to birding basics, covering the selection and use of field guides and binoculars, bird watching etiquette, along with a survey of the best birding spots in Southeastern Arizona. Finally, we’re off on a tour of the grounds at Tohono Chul to see what we can see! Instructor is Lynn Hassler, professional birder, field guide author and educator. $79 | To register click here (10/29) or here (11/14) or call 520.621.8632

Ornamental Grasses
Saturday | November 2 | 10 a.m. | Education Center Classroom #1

The basic elements of a good garden design always include trees, supporting shrubs and accent plants. But don’t forget the grasses. Shelly Ann Abbott, MLA, multi-award winner and Master of Landscape Architecture, has tips on ways to add year round color, texture, variety and, most importantly, movement, to your yard with sustainable, low maintenance native ornamental grasses. $6 members | $10 general public

Remembering the Songs with Gary Stroutsos
Saturday | December 7 | 10 a.m. | Education Center Classroom #1
Gary Stroutsos’ Remembering the Songs: Music Traditions from Zuni, Navajo and Salish is a labor of love, a film that began with requests from tribal elders to preserve their traditional flute music before it was lost forever. In 2011 Stroutsos (garystroutsos.com) began working with Julie Cajune at the Heartlines Center for American Indian Policy and Applied Research (www.caipar.org) to produce a DVD and CD collection of traditional Native American music. In this special event, Stroutsos focuses on his time spent with Fernando Cecilion, Zuni song keeper, sharing the delicate flute traditions of the Zuni people in words and music. CDs and DVDs will be available for sale and signing. $10 members | $15 general public

Ain’t it Grand: The Geology of Grand Canyon & Zion

October 21 – 26 | Monday – Saturday

Traveling with renowned Southwest geologist/naturalist Bob Scarborough and Stephen Bernier of South of the Border Tours, we’ll delve into the diverse geologic past of one of the world’s most incredibly scenic regions—the dramatic natural landscape of northern Arizona and southwest Utah and the grandeur of not one, but two of America’s National Parks. From the south rim of the Grand Canyon to Cedar Breaks National Monument, Scarborough shares the amazing story of the forces that have shaped this landscape of the West. Get the insider’s take on basin and range, discover the latest evidence on the process that formed the Canyon and walk the trails of underrated Zion.

Included in our week-long exploration are stops at the Museum of Northern Arizona, Wupatki Ruins and Lee’s Ferry, a private tour of the Kolb Studio and home on the edge of the Canyon, timeless bristlecone pines and the glorious fall colors of subalpine forests.

The activity level for this tour should be considered moderate to high. There will be situations where walking unassisted over uneven terrain will be necessary. Please note, we will also be traveling to elevations of 10,000 feet.

Cost includes motorcoach transportation, accommodations (two nights at Kachina Lodge in Grand Canyon National Park, two nights at Zion Lodge in Zion National Park and one night at the Holiday Inn Express in Kanab, Utah), many meals, admission fees and guide services.

Day of the Dead – Arizona Style!

November 2 | Saturday | 6:45 a.m. – 6:45 p.m.

You’ve seen the exhibit, heard the lecture and enjoyed Park After Dark, now experience Day of the Dead in Arizona firsthand in the delightful company of well-known Tucson author and oral historian Patricia Preciado Martin. Dia de Los Muertos is a centuries-old tradition very much alive today in Southeastern Arizona. This colorful and elaborate celebration is a time of respect and remembrance. Families gather in cemeteries to honor the deceased cleaning and decorating their graves with fresh and paper flowers, candles and offerings of food and drink. An off the beaten track example will be the cemetery of a 19th century mining camp. Join Patricia, and your familiar hosts, Mary and Piet Van de Mark of Baja’s Frontier Tours, to experience this special holiday firsthand. Martin’s treasured stories bring to life our selection of hidden and historic cemeteries, and a special feature of our day will be the sharing of her own Dia de Los Muertos altar.

Cost includes your own window seat in spacious new vans, picnic lunch, excellent photographic opportunities and travel and trip cancellation insurance. This memorable day is limited to just 25 guests, so reserve soon and savor the anticipation!

Santa Fe Holiday: Journey to the Soul of the Southwest
December 9 – 14 | Monday – Saturday

They call themselves “The City Different” and most of us would agree that there is nowhere else quite like Santa Fe, New Mexico, and especially Santa Fe at the holidays. From its legendary history and culture to its legendary museums and cuisine, Santa Fe embodies a rich mix of Native American, Hispanic and Anglo heritage whose influence is seen in every aspect of the city.

Our guide for this wintertime visit is Dr. Peter Booth, a specialist in the history of the American West and currently Executive Director of the Museum of Western Colorado (Grand Junction). Previously, Booth was affiliated with the Desert Caballeros Western Museum and the Arizona Historical Society in Tucson; our host is Stephen Bernier of South of the Border Tours.

Our first day of travel takes us to Albuquerque, with time to explore Old Town and the Pueblo Cultural Center the following morning. Then it’s on to Santa Fe and four nights at the historic La Fonda hotel on the Plaza, close to a multitude of artful galleries, enticing shops and tempting cafes and restaurants. Over the next four days we’ll stretch our legs on an historic walking tour and tap our toes at a Flamenco performance at El Farol; enjoy a free day of museum exploration, will it be the Georgia O’Keefe, the International Folk Art or the Wheelwright? You choose! There are gallery and studio visits planned from Canyon Road to the Shidoni Foundry to the artist space of sculptor Roxanne Swentzell in Pojoaque; and a private tour of the extensive collection of the Indian Arts Research Center of the School of Advanced Research, a collection considered by many to be one of the most remarkable assemblages of Southwestern Native art in the world. Finally, no visit to New Mexico is complete without a trip to Taos Pueblo, a World Heritage site and El Santuario at Chimayo.

Cost includes motorcoach transportation, accommodations (one night at Hotel Albuquerque in Old Town and four nights at La Fonda in Santa Fe), five meals, guide services and some admission fees. This travel event is being produced in collaboration with the Museum of Western Colorado.

$1475 members ($330 single supplement); a $500 deposit will reserve your spot.
As a bustling 19th century mining town, Silver City, New Mexico sparkled with silver, gold and more copper than Arizona! A thousand years before that, the region bustled with the comings and goings of the vibrant Mogollon and Mimbres cultures whose legacy is preserved in stunning ceramics and the awesome Gila Cliff Dwellings.

Anthropologist, author and second-generation Indian Trader Mark Bahti is our guide to the past, telling tales of the Spanish, Mexican, Apache and Anglo history of the area, bringing the lives of ancient peoples to life and sharing a personal family ranching yarn or two. Our hosts are Piet and Mary Van de Mark of Baja’s Frontier Tours (www.bajasfrontiertours.com)

The town’s 19th century architectural ambience is enhanced with the more recent addition of delightful restaurants, shops and hotels, making it the perfect home base for our adventures. An enchanting old Victorian house is home to the town’s museum, and nearby, the Western New Mexico University campus boasts the world’s largest collection of Mimbres pottery, which the curator/director will detail for us in a private behind-the-scenes showing.

We’ll visit a well-preserved Army post dating to the Apache wars, tour a privately-owned mining ghost town, explore a pre-historic site in the beautiful Mimbres River Valley, learn about the area’s rich mining history from a third-generation miner and experience the grandeur of millions of acres of rugged wilderness as we journey to the memorable Gila Cliff Dwellings.

Travel in comfort in spacious new vans, where everyone enjoys their own window seat! Cost includes three nights’ accommodations, all breakfasts, a couple of yummy picnics, admissions to tours and museums, plus travel & trip cancellation insurance. Come exploring with us as we travel back in time to a fabled, historic city and a gem of the old Southwest.

$1395 per person, double occupancy members ($185 single supplement), a $500 deposit will reserve your space.
