WATER HARVESTER:

An Invitation to Abundance

ABOUT THE FILM

Brad Lancaster believes that cities around the world can live off rainwater. This is the story of how he transformed his neighborhood by experimenting with water harvesting, worked with the city to legalize those methods, and has empowered others by proving that abundance rooted in sustainability is possible.

ABOUT BRAD LANCASTER

Brad Lancaster has run a permaculture and regenerative design, consulting, and education business focused on integrated and sustainable approaches to landscape design, planning, and living since 1993. He believes that we all can become more conscious beneficial stewards of the land.

ABOUT DAVID FENSTER

David Fenster is a Producer and Reporter at Arizona Public Media. His fiction and documentary films have screened at festivals, art museums and media outlets around the world including The Sundance Film Festival, The Museum of Modern Art, The New York Times, and Tribeca Film Festival.
